CONDUCTORS

ANTON ARMSTRONG holds the Harry R. and Thora H. Tosdal Chair in Choral Music and is Professor of Music at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minnesota. He is the Conductor of the internationally renowned St. Olaf Choir. Dr. Armstrong received a B.M. in vocal performance from St. Olaf College, an M.M. in choral music from the University of Illinois, and a D.M.A. in choral conducting from Michigan State University. He has studied voice with Robert Scholz, Burr McWilliams, James Bailey, and Ethel J. Armeling. Dr. Armstrong is active as choral clinician and festival conductor (including numerous all-state choirs) throughout North America, the Caribbean, Scandinavia, Europe, and the Pacific Rim. He has special interest and experience in training the young and adolescent singer. He is an active member of the American Choral Directors Association and Choristers Guild (Past President, National Board of Directors) and former artistic director of Albermarle (the coeducational summer program of the American Boychoir School, Princeton, N.J.)

WILLIAM SILVESTER has a wide range of experience as a performer, conductor, clinician, adjudicator, and music educator. His background includes many years in the public schools at all levels; and, as a college band director, he has appeared as a guest conductor throughout the United States, Canada, and Europe. Dr. Silvester's expertise is in considerable demand with over 20 guest performances annually. In addition he has conducted many professional ensembles including the Russian Army Band, The US Army Band, The US Army Field Band, and the Marine Band, Quantico, VA. At The College of New Jersey, Dr. Silvester conducts the Wind Ensemble and teaches conducting and music education courses. For fifteen years Dr. Silvester served as the Supervisor of the New Jersey Governor's School, Division of Music, (accelerated school for high school students) and conducted the Governor's School Wind Ensemble. As an educator, he has been a member of state music boards in five different states and has been the Eastern Division Chair of the National Band Association (NBA) and New Jersey State Chair for over fifteen years a position he currently holds. His College of New Jersey bands have performed at numerous state and national conventions including those of the Music Educators National Conference and the New Jersey Music Educators Association. Additionally, the Wind Ensemble has performed for the College Band Directors National Association conventions and has performed often at venues throughout the eastern United States.

PROGRAM NOTES

PROCESSION OF THE NOBLES from Mlada (#5 Cortège)

Initially, Rimsky-Korsakov was a naval officer. In 1871, he was offered a position as professor of composition and instrumentation at the St. Petersburg Conservatory. He was extremely reluctant to accept it, for his formal musical education had been minimal and he knew nothing about harmony, counterpoint, or theory. However, he accepted the post (which did not require him to resign from the Navy.) During the next few years he studied theory, and soon he became respected as an excellent teacher. Together with Balakirev, Borodin, Cui, and Musorgsky, he formed a musical group known as the Moguchaya Kuchka (literally, Mighty Handful) or the Russian Five, whose ideals were to produce art that was basically Russian and to break away from the influences of German and French music that had long dominated Russian musical thinking. They planned compositions containing Russian subjects and ideas, and their music was derived from, or influenced by, the styles and idioms of Russian folksongs and dances and old Russian church music.

During the season of 1869-1870, the director of the Imperial Russian Theater of St. Petersburg conceived the idea of staging an elaborate opera ballet based on a subject from Slavic mythology. For this work, to be known as Mlada, he commissioned music from the Russian school of composition. The project was never realized, however, and most of the music which the composers had written found its way into other of their works. Not until 20 years later did Rimsky-Korsakov decide to use the subject for an opera ballet of his own. His Mlada was begun in 1889, and produced at the Marinsky Theater in 1892. The Procession of the Nobles is part of the second act of his failed opera Mlada and was eventually included as the last movement of the opera's ballet suite.

The opening brass fanfare announces the entry of the nobility in this cortege; the woodwinds provide the regal flourishes that embellish the procession. Based on a text from slavic mythology which takes place on the coast of the Baltic Sea, this work was scored for an enlarged orchestra, and was the first work of Rimsky-Korsakov's to show the influence of Richard Wagner, who affected so many composers of the time. Although the opera was a failure, this symphonic offering has been enjoyed by audiences since its first introduction.

RUSSIAN EASTER FESTIVAL OVERTURE, Op. 36

Rimsky-Korsakov's use of Russian national material is very evident in all of his works. The "Russian Easter Festival" Overture, subtitled "Overture on Liturgical Themes", is based on the Obikhod, a collection of Russian Orthodox Church canticles. Rimsky-Korsakov tried to portray the heathen aspect of the holiday, and the transition from the solemnity and mystery of the evening of Passion Saturday to the joyous pagan and religious celebrations of Easter Sunday morning. A long, slow introduction presents the two main themes. The first, in the woodwind, is the ecclesiastical theme "Let God Arise, let his enemies be scattered" (Psalm 68 in the King James version of the Bible.) After a solo violin cadenza the second hymn, "An Angel Cried Out" is given out by solo cello. The somber colors of this slow section were intended to portray the Holy Sepulcher, which had shone with a mysterious light at the moment of His resurrection. Trombones and strings then repeat the first theme antiphonally. A second solo-violin cadenza leads to the Allegro, the main part of the overture, which quotes the hymn "Let them that also hate Him flee before Him". Both main themes are recalled and elaborated. A subsidiary section is based on the famous Russian Easter chant, "Christ is arisen," known as the Obikhod theme; it reappears in the triumphant coda, which includes prominent trumpets and the tolling of bells.

RIENZI OVERTURE

Richard Wagner wrote thirteen operas that historians categorize into three different groups: early operas, romantic operas, and music dramas. His third work, Rienzi, was the last of his early operas. In late 1837, Wagner set out to compose an opera based on the novel Rienzi, the Last of the Roman Tribunes, by Edward Bulwer-Lytton.

During his youth, he had much trouble in his personal and financial life as well as his composing career. Fleeing from his debts, he went to Paris and sought out Meyerbeer, another German who was the most successful composer of French grand opera. Still in financial trouble, Wagner was placed in debtors' prison for his outstanding debts. After working for months on Rienzi, Wagner, with the help of Meyerbeer, learned that the opera had been accepted by the Dresden Opera.

The world premiere of Rienzi, der Letzte der Tribunen took place on October 20, 1842 at the recently opened Dresden opera house. The five-act opera lasted six hours with Wagner worrying that his audience would be bored. Years later, he recalled in his autobiography My Life that "...my astonishment at finding the audience still there in full muster, even in the last act towards midnight, filled me with unbounded perplexity." Rienzi was Wagner's first major success. In subsequent performances, the opera was split into two parts, Rienzi's Grösse (Rienzi's Greatness) and Rienzi's Fall (Rienzi's Fall). However, the audiences complained at having to pay twice for one opera, and as a result, Wagner was forced to shorten the length of the opera.

The opera is about a Roman leader, Cola di Rienzi, who stages a rebellion, crushing the nobility and assuming leadership of his city. An insurrection among the townspeople is formed to overthrow Rienzi because of his questionable leadership and his supposed conspiring with the nobles to rule the townspeople. Adriano, son of the head of a rival house, leads the attack on Rienzi but cannot assassinate him because of his relationship to Irene, Rienzi's sister. The defeated nobles storm back to kill Rienzi and his peers by setting the whole town ablaze. Adriano, Rienzi and Irene are buried alive when a building collapses on top of them.

The overture to Rienzi is actually a medley incorporating themes from the opera. It follows a set form that includes an introduction, an exposition [the main theme] and other variations on the theme. The trumpet's sustained note at the very beginning of the overture symbolizes the signal for revolt against the nobility. The string entrance is the same theme as the somber tune played in Rienzi's prayer in the final act before he dies. This theme is passed from the strings to the woodwinds, only in greater magnitude than before. This slow introduction is followed by a more uplifting theme, the battle-hymn. The battle-hymn is not only passed from the strings to the woodwinds, but also played in unison. The overture ends with its heroic last theme, Rienzi, Praise to Thee.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The members of the New Jersey Music Educators Association express their appreciation and gratitude to all those who have given of their time and talent to make this project possible. We acknowledge the sincere cooperation of students, parents, teachers, principals, superintendents and Boards of Education of the schools represented in this program. Only through their loyal support could this educational opportunity be realized for so many students. We are especially indebted to our sponsors, The New Jersey Education Association and the New Jersey Performing Arts Center.

We extend our special thanks to the following Boards of Education for the kind use of their facilities.
